From the President

An image of thoroughbreds rounding the last turn and heading down the home stretch comes to mind when I think about the last weeks of the spring semester. The horses are winded but the pace increases as the finish line comes into view. Given the pace of activity on campus and the general feeling of "being winded" that permeates the community, I think the horse race metaphor aptly describes the Seminary during these days.

The finish line for many students is this week. Denver Seminary will send more graduates into ministry than any previous year. As I hand each graduate their diploma at commencement, I'm reminded of the sacrifices they and their families have made to earn their degree. I'm also struck by an overwhelming sense of how many lives will be changed as they faithfully share the gospel in the years ahead.

It's been over thirty years since I graduated from seminary. Even though I can't remember the speech given at commencement or even who delivered it, I can say without hesitation that I use the foundation for ministry that I gained in seminary every day.

If you're in the Denver area on May 18th, join us for commencement at Southeast Christian Church at 10:00 AM. Dr. Chuck Swindoll will be our speaker. I bet you'll remember what he has to say!

Grateful for you,

Mark
